

Language, Land and Belonging

Poetic Inquiries

Edited by

Natalie Honein

and

Margaret McKeon

Series in Literary Studies

VERNON PRESS

Copyright © 2023 by the authors.

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or otherwise, without the prior permission of Vernon Art and Science Inc.

www.vernonpress.com

In the Americas:
Vernon Press
1000 N West Street, Suite 1200
Wilmington, Delaware, 19801
United States

In the rest of the world:
Vernon Press
C/Sancti Espiritu 17,
Malaga, 29006
Spain

Series in Literary Studies

Library of Congress Control Number: 2023930627

ISBN: 978-1-64889-607-1

Product and company names mentioned in this work are the trademarks of their respective owners. While every care has been taken in preparing this work, neither the authors nor Vernon Art and Science Inc. may be held responsible for any loss or damage caused or alleged to be caused directly or indirectly by the information contained in it.

Cover photo credits: Margaret McKeon

Feather drawings on section title pages by Kedrick James as follows:
I - Herring Gull; II - Glaucous Gull; III - Crow, Barred Owl, Stellars Jay

Every effort has been made to trace all copyright holders, but if any have been inadvertently overlooked the publisher will be pleased to include any necessary credits in any subsequent reprint or edition.

Table of Contents

	Foreword	ix
	John J. Guiney Yallop
	Introduction	1
	Margaret McKeon and Natalie Honein
	I. Language	13
Chapter 1	Anita Lafferty	15
	Godenítile & Dzene [poem]
	A Love Letter to Dene zhatie [essay]
Chapter 2	Emma Green	21
	kaiako [poem]
	Kaiako : Some Reflections on Intimacy, Interconnectedness and Insight [essay]
Chapter 3	Maya T. Borhani	27
	Weye Ebis (Keep Speaking) [poem]
	Weye Ebis (Keep Speaking) [essay]
Chapter 4	Holly Tsun Haggarty	33
	Case Study [poem]
	The Stations of Her Loss [poem]
	Let's Tog [poem]
	Let Me Write the Syntax of Your Body [poem]
	Lost and Found: The Indigeneity and Genesis of Language [essay]
Chapter 5	Ángel L. Martínez	49
	Borinqueñidades , or How Borikén Taíno Walked the Earth in Words [poem]

	Borinquenidades, or How Borikén Taíno Walked the Earth in Words [essay]
Chapter 6	Paula Aamli	55
	You Can't Say That [poem]
	Those People [poem]
	Wanting to Belong is not Belonging [essay]
Chapter 7	Margaret McKeon	63
	My (English) Tongue Walks the Connemara Gaeltacht [poem]
	Wise Woman of the Hag Stone, Beara Peninsula, Ireland [poem]
	High Mountain Truth [poem]
	Signs of Creation [poem]
	In the Languages of Rivers [essay]
Chapter 8	Jan Buley and Will Morin	71
	Layer Upon Layer: Bezhik [poem]
	Layer Upon Layer: Niizh [poem]
	Layer Upon Layer: Nswi [poem]
	Layer Upon Layer: Bezhik, Niizh, Nswi
	Collaborative Poetry [essay]
II. Land		77
Chapter 9	Joseph Naytowhow and Kathryn Ricketts	79
	Braiding Sweet Intentions through Mentorship and Friendship [essay]
	Looking for My Mother [poem]
	Land Acknowledgement [poem]
	The Tobacco Pouch – An Earnest Attempt [poem]
	Big Bear's Buffalo Dreams [poem]
	Tentative Apology [poem]

Chapter 10	Wanda Campbell	89
	Dialects of Dreaming Down Under [poem]
	Dialects of Dreaming Down Under [essay]
Chapter 11	Adam Garry Podolski	97
	Beneath the Canadian Tuxedo [poem]
	Zenibaagamigoons (Chrysalis) [poem]
	Undressing with the Help of Narrative and Poetic Inquiry [essay]
Chapter 12	Marcy Meyer	105
	The Gourd Dancers* [poem]
	Retracing “The Gourd Dancers” [essay]
Chapter 13	Sandra Filippelli	113
	The Goddess of Yamdrok Yumtso Lake [poem]
	The Goddess of Yamdrok Yumtso Lake [essay]
Chapter 14	daniela elza	119
	but we still argue [poem]
	splitting [poem]
	Tuning in to the Low Pitch Hum of the Earth: Messing Around with the Profound [essay]
Chapter 15	Robert Nellis	127
	Windows [poem]
	What is Called Lost? [poem]
	Ascending Spring [poem]
	Two-Story Colonial [poem]
	Memories, Legacies, and the Moon in the Sky [essay]
Chapter 16	Natalie Honein	135
	Ancestral Appeal [essay]
	Of Cedars and Olives [poem]
	A Yearning [poem]
	Foremothers [poem]

III. Belonging	141
Chapter 17 alexandra fidyk	143
Indigeneity as Love [essay and poems]
Chapter 18 Sarah MacKenzie-Dawson	155
Motherhood Overlapping [poem]
(Im)perfect Mirrors [poem]
Fluttered (Be)longing [poem]
Along the Susquehanna: Poetic Inquiry as Be(long)ing [essay]
Chapter 19 Andrejs Kūlnieks	165
Steps Toward Gifts of Movement [poem]
Travel along the Amber Sea [poem]
Burning through Decades [poem]
Eco-Poetic Inquiry Connections: Translation, Performance, and Literacy Learning Through Places [essay]
Chapter 20 Nicole Morris	173
16. [poem]
The price of entering white spaces [poem]
FREE [poem]
Poetry for Calling In [essay]
Chapter 21 Pauline Sameshima	179
Finding my Talk: Language as Protector [essay]
Asking my XY [poem]
What Am I Without . . . [poem]
Chapter 22 Adam Vincent	187
Languaging the Helix: Ally-Acadie [poem]
Poetic Inquiry: Self Discovery on Indigenous Homelands [essay]

Chapter 23	Adrian M. Downey	195
	It is The End of The World [poem]
	All is Still [poem]
	He/She Breaks it in Two [poem]
	All I Know How to Give [essay]
	List of Contributors	203
	Index	211

Foreword

John J. Guiney Yallop

Silence is a Death

Silence is a death
I will not have.

Words are my sword
into the night.

I crawl into Earth's uterus.

Heat releases colonial memories
from my body.

Sweat is a cleansing gift from the Ancient Ones.

Outside the Lodge,
my ancestors welcome me back to who I am.

I Didn't Notice

I didn't notice
my mother's dark skin
nor the skin her sisters wore,
gifts from their mother, my grandmother.

While I played cowboys and Indians with the other boys,
our own bodies a playground,
I didn't notice that I was one of them.

Words not spoken
or not heard.
Voices silent
or ignored.
Were we ever
who we were?

Now, language is my playground.
I (re)claim identities
and communities
I didn't know I had.

Introduction

Margaret McKeon and Natalie Honein

In October 2019, the Seventh International Symposium on Poetic Inquiry (ISPI) was held in Halifax, Nova Scotia (also known as Mi'kma'ki¹) in Canada. Participants were invited to perform, present, and create poetry on the theme of Indigenous languages, based on the United Nations Declaration of 2019 as the International Year of Indigenous Languages. The symposium gave participants an opportunity to reflect on the Indigenous languages of the lands where they live or have lived, and their relationships to those Indigenous peoples and languages. Indigenous and non-Indigenous participants inquired into their relationships to ancestral languages and lands, with Indigenous participants speaking of the reparative importance of their languages and cultures in the face of ongoing colonial violence. As with every previous ISPI, in 2019, there were presenters from various ranks and fields of academia and from outside academia—scholars, professors, doctoral students, artists, activists, performers, poets, and authors—coming from the United States, Canada, South Africa, Lebanon, and New Zealand.

This book, Language, Land and Belonging: Poetic Inquiries, takes up themes emergent from the 2019 symposium and widens the scope to include, more generally, languages, lands, and belongings. Situated in diverse global contexts, the contributing authors in this book reflect on many aspects of relational, ancestral, and community repair through poetic inquiry (Faulkner, 2009; Prendergast et al., 2009)—itself a relational research practice concerned with the self and self-in-relation (Graveline, 1998). They offer relational understandings of, and articulate obligations for, their environment and communities. Their submissions are grouped into the overlapping categories of language, land, and belonging. Each of the (overlapping) relational repairs the authors convey is an affirmation of their relationships and their responsibilities to honor the connectivities that serve their lives. Through the creativity of writing, each author brings us, as readers, into their world of learning and growth, and offers this same possibility to us through an experience of their poetic inquiry.

¹ The traditional territory of the Mi'kmaq.

Colonialism and Relational Repair

This publication is very timely as the year 2022 began the United Nations International Decade of Indigenous Languages, which “aims at ensuring Indigenous peoples’ right to preserve, revitalize and promote their languages” (UNESCO, 2021, para. 3), and endeavors to “help promote and protect Indigenous languages and improve the lives of those who speak them” (International Decade of Indigenous Languages 2022-2032, 2022).

The international need to preserve, revitalize, and promote Indigenous languages is necessarily entwined with global legacies of colonial violence. Cree scholar Dwayne Donald (2021) describes colonialism as an ongoing process of denying relationships and relational responsibilities. For Indigenous peoples, but also for settler and other diasporic peoples, relational violations include severing relationships with languages, lands, and cultural and community origins (belongings). Colonialism is a system of violence based on claims of superiority that manifest in the denial of relationships and relational obligations. It stands in contrast to a relational way of being. Cree scholar Shawn Wilson (2008) describes relationality as a common Indigenous understanding that reality is composed of relationships and that being ethical is being accountable to these relationships.

Colonialism “erases the pasts of its victims” (Ifowod, 2013, p. ix). It strives to foreclose on Indigenous peoples’ futures by severing their perseverance and presence as rightful stewards of their traditional territories. The erasing of Indigenous peoples’ connections to their territories is needed for colonial powers to generate wealth and power, and to make way for prosperous settler communities (Absolon, 2016).

Colonialism also requires the erasure of the pre-colonial pasts of settlers and, for many, their relationships with their original cultures and lands. A striking early 20th-century example in the United States was the “Melting Pot” as David Dean (2018) describes,

Upon graduation from the Ford Motor Company’s Americanization program, tens of thousands of European immigrant employees would walk into this large “Melting Pot” wearing their traditional ethnic attire, their teachers would stir the pot with large oars, and they would change into suits, grab American flags and walk out of the pot “Americanized.” (fig. 10)

“Schooling for belonging” in colonial societies and within colonizing societies is largely schooling into foundational myths of colonial superiority. These myths manifest variously as racial, moral, cultural, linguistic, and epistemic superiority (Santos, 2014; Smith, 2012) and they enforce denial of pre-colonial values and relationships for all. For all peoples, including Indigenous and settler peoples, reclaiming origins and origin stories can disrupt colonial myths, which are the foundations of colonial violence.

Entrenched colonial superiority continues to impact Indigenous communities. Ktunaxa scholar Michele Sam (2019) explains how “since contact, nation-state-sanctioned research, policy, and practice has erased Indigenous Peoples’ original ontologies and cosmologies” (p. 3). This enduring legacy stems from “a premise of colonialism... that Indigenous Peoples’ systems were once inferior to... Eurocentric systems and now to mainstream Western ones” (p. 3). In Canada, the terms “reconciliation” and “resurgence” are used to describe relational recovery and renewal. Asch et al. (2018) describe an interconnection between transformative reconciliation, Indigenous resurgence, and relationship with land, whereby Resurgence refers to practices of Indigenous self-determination and cultural renewal. Reconciliation refers to practices of reconciliation between Indigenous and settler nations as well as efforts to strengthen the relationship between Indigenous and settler peoples with the living earth and making that relationship the basis for both resurgence and Indigenous-settler reconciliation. (p. i)

As several authors in this volume show, the protection, revitalization, and promotion of Indigenous languages is vital to notions of reconciliation and resurgence. So too, is the recovery of relationship with the living earth foundational to relational repair between and among human communities. Blackfoot scholar Leroy Little Bear (2000) explains the relational understandings and obligations coded into Indigenous languages:

Language embodies the way a society thinks. Through learning and speaking a particular language, an individual absorbs the collective thought processes of a people. Aboriginal languages are, for the most part, verb-rich languages that are process- or action-oriented. They are generally aimed at describing “happenings” rather than objects. The languages of Aboriginal peoples allow for the transcendence of boundaries. For example, the categorizing process in many Aboriginal languages does not make use of the dichotomies either/or, black/white, saint/sinner. There is no animate/inanimate dichotomy. Everything is more or less animate. Consequently, Aboriginal languages allow for talking to trees and rocks, an allowance not accorded in English. If everything is animate, then everything has spirit and knowledge. If everything has spirit and knowledge, then all are like me. If all are like me, then all are my relations. (p. 2-3)

Relational repair is rooted in personal and communal transformations (Meyer, 2008). Inspired by scholars like Little Bear (2000) and by the United Nations International Year of Indigenous Languages, the authors in this book reflect on many aspects of relational, ancestral, and community repair through poetic inquiry. As a research practice concerned with particularity, complexity, and transformations, poetic inquiry offers an important window into this vital work.

Poetic Inquiry

The twenty-three testimonies and journeys in this book come from across geographical borders, each identifying with one or multiple languages, lands, and cultures. At the heart of each offering is poetic inquiry. Poetic inquiry is a method of study that incorporates poetry into academic research in the social sciences. This method has existed for many decades, but was formalized into a research community during the first ISPI in 2007, and in the multiple publications that have since materialized (see lists of ISPI meetings and publications below) (Faulkner, 2009; Prendergast & Leggo, 2007; Prendergast et al., 2009). It is a method of investigation that invites us, as inquirers, to more closely examine and engage with the knowledge we seek while communicating and conducting research. It is a continual process of questioning, of welcoming, of awareness. Poetic inquiry makes qualitative research data more visceral and evocative by helping us as a community of inquirers identify what may have been pushed to the periphery of our minds. With time, poetic inquiry enables the seeker to reach the essence of what they, or their participants, may be trying to access; or as Mary Weems (2017) expressed, poetic inquiry invites speaking from “the womb in one’s mind.” Such depth of inquiry facilitates exploring what is left unexplored and unvoiced. And thus, it allows space for the voice that refuses to stay quiet; the soft voice of resistance. As a research method, poetic inquiry is an act of defiance—a way to learn to unlearn. It can produce research that is unambiguous, transparent, sometimes controversial, and often powerful. Kedrick James (2017) asserts that,

The further an inquiry goes, the more surprises we encounter; compare this to other research practices, which might be expected to do the opposite, to become predictable. Prediction is foretelling, and we cannot entirely expel the notion that if we want to remain open to discovery in any particular field, the language we use to communicate and investigate a subject might have a big influence in the knowledge we generate about it. If the language we use in our work is unduly generic and predictable, it might just be that our research will also turn out to be generic and predictable. (p. 23)

Along the way, poetic inquiry reinvents the author and shapes their voice. The narrative voice of a poetic inquirer is not only about what is out there, but about revealing the process of how to engage with relationships, places, and ideas on a personal level, and how the mind, body, and spirit process experience. This is done by showing the reader the author's struggle, the method, the pain, and the joy that got them there during the research. In this sense, poetic inquiry lures in the reader, disturbs the traditional experience of reader-receiver/reader-observer, and brings the reader in to engage with the text and the experience. Not only does it allow the author to find their voice, but poetic inquiry also teaches us, as readers, to listen. It allows the reader to test the limits of their empathy, especially when reading other works that they may not agree with. At the core of poetic inquiry is the necessity to breathe and take the time to look carefully, to be able to truly see.

As scholars navigating the space between insiders and outsiders on the margins of one or another community, poetic inquiry informs our teaching and our learning. As teachers and guides, we need to ask ourselves, how can we teach our students, and others, to find their voice, if we haven't yet found our own? And how can we make the time to find our voice when the tensions between creative practice and critical discourse continue to be high. If we teach without doing our own research/writing/poetry, we deprive ourselves of something deeper, more meaningful, and, in the process, we deprive our students. Poetic inquiry helps us to make space for pedagogical transformations in academia and beyond. At the heart of merging poetry with scholarship, we need to do as Leggo (2016) generously did—"seek to see with the eyes of the heart and to hear with the ears of the heart" (p. 351).

Language, Land, and Belonging

Within the pages of this book, poetic inquiry enables the authors, situated in diverse global contexts, to reaffirm relationships and examine the intersectionality of their languages, their identities, and their sense of belonging. They do this through family stories and through discourses of belonging and relational obligation that tie them to a place, a land, a genealogy. Through stories of shared generational pain and suffering, poetic inquiry helps to honor languages and histories taken for granted; it allows looking back in order to reexamine, redefine, comprehend a past, to make sense of the present and its shortcomings, and to reimagine a different future. This process allows us, as inquirers and readers, moments of pause to examine and re/connect with the difficult and reparative stories that support our existence in the world, and to find personal meaning behind our longing to belong and contribute to a land, a place, a language, and a people.

This collection stems from an initial invitation for authors to reflect on the importance of honoring, revitalizing, and promoting Indigenous languages. In response, some authors reflect, each from their own location, on their relationships with Indigenous languages, lands, and experiences. Other authors in this book take up broader themes of relational repair to inquire into their ancestries, their ancestral languages, and their relationship to our vibrant living earth. Situated in North America, Potawatomi ecologist Robin Wall Kimmerer (2014) describes the prophecy of the Seventh Fire as offering guidance for these times. Our time now was forecasted as a time when both Indigenous peoples and newcomers would need to re-walk the roads of our ancestors to find the teachings they have left to guide our way into the future. She explains, “It is the wisdom that we reclaim that will allow us to renew the world” (Kimmerer, 2014). This is the work of this book. It is the work of reclaiming, through poetic inquiry, wisdoms of language, land, and belonging.

We offer the poems and essays in the book through three overlapping themes. Sitting at the intersections of the personal and the global, under Language, authors inquire variously into relationships of loss, repair, and renewal of ancestral and Indigenous languages. Authors meditate on the relationship between languages and identity, sovereignty, intergenerational continuity, and connection to land and place. Indigenous and ancestral languages can be a reparative balm on wounds of colonial violence and other relational traumas. In Land, through stories, cultural teachings, and poetic creativity, authors situate themselves in relationship to particular lands and to the more-than-human, and consider the responsibilities that come from these relationships. Some important themes addressed include honoring Indigenous territories, reconciliation between Indigenous peoples and settlers, colonial histories, and honoring spirits of the land and ancestral relationships with land. In this section, we are reminded that lands flow through voice, language, and responsibilities. Finally, in Belonging, authors consider the complex gifts and burdens of (un)belonging to family, community, culture and place. Authors here trace ancestral roots and traumas, confront entrenched racism, and invoke speculative fiction as a way to confront that which “is” and call forward more just visions of what could be.

As editors, we invite you to read this book with an open mind and an open heart, allowing yourself to feel, to question, to imagine, and to be provoked into action.

References

- Absolon, K. E. (2016). Wholistic and ethical: Social inclusion with Indigenous Peoples. Social Inclusion, 4(1), 44-56. 10.17645/si.v4i1.444
- Asch, M., Borrows, J., & Tully, J. (2018). Resurgence and reconciliation: Indigenous-settler relations and earth teachings. University of Toronto Press.
- Dean, D. (2018, October 27). Roots deeper than whiteness: Remembering who we are for the well-being of all. White Awake. <https://whiteawake.org/2018/10/27/roots-deeper-than-whiteness/>
- Donald, D. (2021). We need a new story: Walking and the wâhkôhtowin imagination. Journal of the Canadian Association for Curriculum Studies, 18(2), 53-63. <https://jcacs.journals.yorku.ca/index.php/jcacs/article/view/40492>
- Faulkner, S. (2009). Poetry as method. Left Coast.
- Gaveline, F. J. (1998). Circle works: Transforming Eurocentric consciousness. Fernwood.
- Ifowod, O. (2013). History, trauma, and healing in postcolonial narratives: Reconstructing identities. Palgrave Macmillan.
- International Decade of Indigenous Languages 2022-2032. (2022). https://idil2022-2032.org/about-2022-2032#key_documents
- James, K. (2017). What lovely words might also mean. In P. Sameshima, A. Fidyk, K. James, & C. Leggo (Eds.), Poetic inquiry: Enchantment of place, (pp. 23-27). Vernon.
- Kimmerer, R. W. (2014). Mishkos Kenomagwen: The teachings of grass [Video]. Bioneers. Youtube. <https://youtu.be/cumEQcRMY3c>
- Leggo, C. (2016). A poem can: Poetic encounters. LEARNing Landscapes, 9(2), 351-365. <https://doi.org/10.36510/learnland.v9i2.780>
- Little Bear, L. (2000). Jagged worldviews colliding. In Walking together: First Nations, Métis and Inuit perspectives in curriculum (1-9). Government of Alberta. https://www.learnalberta.ca/content/aswt/worldviews/documents/jagged_worldviews_colliding.pdf
- Meyer, M. A. (2008). Indigenous and authentic: Hawaiian epistemology and the triangulation of meaning. In N. K. Denzin, Y. S. Lincoln, & L. Smith (Eds.), Handbook of critical and Indigenous methodologies (pp. 217-232). Sage.
- Prendergast, M., & Leggo, C. (2007). Astonishing wonder: Spirituality and poetry in educational research. In L. Bresler (Ed.), International handbook of research in arts education (pp. 1459-1480). Springer.
- Prendergast, M., Leggo, C., & Sameshima, P. (Eds.). (2009). Poetic inquiry: Vibrant voices in the social sciences. Sense.
- Sam, M. A. (2019). Contextualizing approaches to Indigenous peoples' experiences of intractable conflict. New England Journal of Public Policy, 31(1), 1-17. <https://scholarworks.umb.edu/nejpp/vol31/iss1/5>
- Santos, B. de Sousa. (2014). Epistemologies of the South: Justice against epistemicide. Paradigm.
- Smith, L. T. (2012). Decolonizing methodologies: Research and Indigenous peoples (2nd ed.). Zed.
- UNESCO (2021). International Decade of Indigenous Languages. <https://en.unesco.org/idil2022-2032>

Weems, M. (2017, November 4). ISPI-2017 [Keynote Presentation]. Poetry as/in/for Social Justice. Bowling Green State University, Ohio, USA.

Wilson, S. (2008). Research is ceremony: Indigenous research methods. Fernwood.

PAGES MISSING
FROM THIS FREE SAMPLE

List of Contributors

Adam Garry Podolski (Quest Art School and Gallery) is a Canadian teacher-editor-artist-author-poet and pet lover. His doctoral dissertation Towards a Personal Philosophy of Curriculum: Approaching Currere and Narrative Inquiry within an Aokian Paradigm of Reciprocity was recognized as an original and unique contribution to the field of values and leadership in education, receiving runner-up for the Paul T. Begley Award. He is co-editor of the volume Influences and Inspirations in Curriculum Studies Research and Teaching: Reflections on the Origins and Legacy of Contemporary Scholarship and the illustrator of Engaging with Meditative Inquiry in Teaching, Learning, and Research: Realizing Transformative Potentials in Diverse Contexts. Recently, he contributed as a guest co-editor and illustrator for “The Breath in Our Bones: Poetic Inquiry in Search of Air,” a special issue in the Journal of the Canadian Association for Curriculum Studies.

Adam Vincent (University of the Fraser Valley, Capilano University) is a poet, researcher, and instructor at multiple universities in British Columbia, Canada. He teaches in the areas of Communications, Academic Transitions and Literacy Education. Both his research and his writing explore ways that poetic inquiry functions in research and scholarship. He seeks to identify and develop new ways to use poetry as a tool for bolstering academic growth and for personal development purposes for students and faculty alike.

Adrian M. Downey (he/him) (Mount Saint Vincent University) is an Assistant Professor of education at Mount Saint Vincent University, Canada. He completed his PhD in educational studies at the University of New Brunswick. Generally, his research and teaching focus on curriculum theory, the foundations of education, and Indigenous education. Outside of his academic work, Adrian lives a simple life with his partner and their little grey cat. He has never owned a television and avidly listens to the radio.

alexandra fidyk (University of Alberta), poet, philosopher, artist, and professor serves the Faculty of Education at the University of Alberta, Canada. Her transdisciplinary scholarship engages with youth, teachers, and health-care professionals on issues of wellbeing and health through body-centred, relational, contemplative, and creative process. Her research, training, and experience as a Jungian somatic psychotherapist, trauma-specialised, have led to the development of a graduate certificate in trauma-sensitive practice. Her graduate teaching, research, and scholarship have received institutional and national awards.

Andrejs Kūlnieks (University of Saskatchewan) is an Assistant Professor with the University of Saskatchewan, located in Saskatoon, in Western Canada. He is in the Department of Curriculum Studies teaching undergraduate and graduate courses in the areas of Language Arts, Drama, and Literacies. His research interests include curriculum theory, language arts, (eco)literacies, arts-informed research, poetic inquiry, Indigenous environmental studies, ecojustice, and environmental education. Kūlnieks works from an ecojustice and poetic inquiry framework to investigate how a deep analysis of language can foster the developing of relationships with intact ecosystems as well as with local places.

Ángel L. Martínez (Antioch University) is a poet, musician, educator, and Deputy Artistic Director of The Bread is Rising Poetry Collective. His poetry and articles have appeared in Poetic Inquiry: Enchantments of Place, Drumvoices Revue, and other anthologies, books, and journals. He is a bassist and singer with The Arawax in New York City, USA, where he lives and works. His PhD in Leadership and Change from Antioch University was focused on Puerto Rican Studies, poetry, and education, and he currently teaches poetry and human development in the bachelor's program. He is also Adjunct Associate Professor, Political Science, for Bronx Community College of the City University of New York.

Anita Lafferty (University of Alberta) is a ts'éli-iskwew [Dene Cree] and a citizen of the Líídlı́ Kííé First Nation, Northwest Territories in what we now call Canada. She has a PhD from the University of Alberta in the Faculty of Secondary Education. Her doctoral research examines approaches of Indigenous curriculum perspectives grounded in Dene k'ęę [philosophy] on the Land. She was awarded the 2022 Margaret "Presh" Kates Aboriginal Doctoral Award in Education for her doctoral dissertation. Her research includes learning from/with the Land, experiences of Indigenous youth, identity, healing, and matriarchal wisdom.

Daniela Elza (Poetic Inquiry Independent Scholar) lived on three continents before immigrating to Canada. Her poetry collections are the broken boat (2020), the weight of dew (2012), milk tooth bane bone (2013), the book of it (2011) and slow erosions (2020)—a chapbook written in collaboration with poet Arlene Ang. Daniela earned her doctorate in Philosophy of Education from Simon Fraser University. Her thesis was nominated for the 2011 CAGS UMI Distinguished Dissertation Award Competition, and received the Dean of Graduate Studies Convocation Medal. Most recently, Daniela's essays can be found in Riddle Fence, Grain Magazine, Motherwell, Queen's Quarterly, About Place Journal and subTerrain.

Emma Green (The Psychotherapy Centre) is a psychotherapist and artist living and working in Tāmaki Makaurau, Aotearoa (Auckland, New Zealand). She loves writing and poetry and languages and clay. She lives with her partner of Ngāpuhi and Ngati Korokoro descent. They have three children together.

Holly Tsun Haggarty (Lakehead University), PhD, scholar-artist, creates poetry and other artworks to explore philosophical matters, such as the source and emergence of language. Author of both literary and academic works, Holly also serves as Managing Editor for the Journal of the Canadian Association for Curriculum Studies (JCACS/RACEC) and as Poetry Editor for Cloud Lake Literary Magazine. Living at the shore of the world's largest fresh-water lake, Gichigami (Thunder Bay, Canada), Holly enthusiastically joins in local (cross-) culture. As mater familias, she is Ma, Mom, M'amie to three grown-up children and four growing-up grandchildren.

Jan Buley (Memorial University of Newfoundland and Labrador) shares her love for literacy and drama education with teacher candidates within Memorial University's School of Education in St. John's, Newfoundland and Labrador, Canada. Jan believes that curiosity and an ability to "imagine things as other" are necessary in all teaching and learning communities. She runs from apathy and believes that the finest teachers are eight years old.

Joseph Naytowhow is a gifted Plains/Woodland cree (nehiyaw) singer/songwriter, storyteller, and voice, stage and film actor from the Sturgeon Lake First Nation Band in Saskatchewan, Canada. As a child, Joseph was influenced by his grandfather's traditional and ceremonial chants as well as the sounds of the fiddle and guitar. Today he is renowned for his unique style of cree/English storytelling, combined with original contemporary music and traditional First Nations drum and rattle songs.

Kathryn Ricketts (University of Regina) is an Associate Professor and Chair of Dance, as well as Director of Professional Development and Field Experience in the Faculty of Education at the University of Regina. Ricketts' performative scholarship involves dance, theater and visual arts and has articulated the methodology Embodied Poetic Narrative. Her work is focused on developing "voice" through performance with vulnerable populations using artifacts and personal narratives. She runs "The Listening Lab," a visual and performing arts 'incubator,' and presents exhibitions and performances in her loft in the John Deere Tractor Building in Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada.

Marcy Meyer hails from New Hampshire, USA. She is an Associate Professor in the Department of Communication Studies at Ball State University, where she teaches organizational communication and research methods. Marcy serves as an Associate Editor of Art/Research International: A Transdisciplinary Journal and President of the Delaware County, Indiana chapter of the National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI). A winner of the ICA Redding Dissertation Award and the CSCA Federation Prize, Marcy has published her research about organizational communication, innovation, mentoring, diversity, and poetic inquiry internationally.

Margaret McKeon (St. Mary's University) is an outdoor educator, writer, and Adjunct Assistant Professor at St. Mary's University in Calgary, Alberta. In her research and in life, as a settler person of Irish and German ancestry, she considers land relationship, ancestral knowledges and colonialism through story and poetry. Her work has been published in literary and academic journals, and book collections. She lives with her partner surrounded by mountains and rivers in Canmore, Alberta, Canada, in Treaty 7 Territory.

Maya T. Borhani (University of Victoria) is a lifelong (un)learner and (re)educator of Iranian immigrant and European settler descent. Her (re)search into poetic inquiry and embodied ways-of-knowing honors living relationships between land, language, people, and our many relations among flora, fauna, rock, cloud, seas and stars. Maya lives and writes from Nisenan (Southern Maidu) traditional and unceded territory in the western Sierra foothills of Northern California. Currently, she is finishing a PhD in Education through the University of Victoria, British Columbia, and hopes to continue teaching poetry, memoir, curricula of place, and Indigenous language revitalization methods upon completion of her degree.

Natalie Honein (American University of Sharjah) is a writer, educator, and life-long learner. She has taught academic writing at universities in the Middle East for the past twenty years and holds postgraduate degrees in political science, language, and education. She is a strong advocate for narrative research and poetic inquiry. Her publications have appeared in several academic journals and books, and have explored Arab women's activism, social equity, identity, and the plight of refugees. She lives and writes in Dubai.

Nicole Morris (Institute of American Indian Arts) was born in Los Angeles, California, and holds an M.A. in Education from Prescott College. Poetry informs all aspects of her life as a mother, scholar, and educator whose research is rooted in the intersections of identity, coloniality, and BIPOC liberation. A published poet, Nicole resides in Santa Fe, New Mexico, USA, where she teaches in the Creative Writing department at the Institute of American Indian Arts.

Paula Aamli ("OM-lee") (City, University of London) was born in Wales, grew up in Cheshire, and now lives in London; her surname is Norwegian. She has worked in the charity sector and in financial services. Paula holds a doctorate in organizational change. Her thesis, Working through climate grief: A poetic inquiry, explores individual and institutional responses to the emerging climate crisis, using arts-based research and poetry. Paula has had poems published online, including in: Allegro Poetry Magazine, FreezeRay Poetry, The Lindenwood Review, Paddler Press, Shot Glass, and the Tiger Moth Review. One of Paula's poems received a Pushcart Prize nomination in 2021.

Pauline Sameshima (Lakehead University) is a professor at Lakehead University in Thunder Bay, Ontario, Canada. She is the curator of the LAIR Galleries and the Editor-in-Chief of the Journal of the Canadian Association for Curriculum Studies. Pauline leads the CAIR Program (Community Arts Integrated Research) for a 5-year, $25.6 million project called HIV Obstruction by Programmed Epigenetics (HOPE). Pauline was co-host of ISPI 2015 and co-edited the ISPI 2007 and 2015 conference volumes. Besides her favorite pastime of being with family, she enjoys tennis, writing and making art, cultivating her kombucha scoby hotel, and making flower arrangements from plants she has grown in her garden.

Robert Nellis (Red Deer Polytechnique) lives in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada with one human and two more-than-human family members. He commutes to Red Deer Polytechnic, 2 to 2 ½ hours south (depending on traffic), where he teaches in the Teacher Education program. He has done so since 2009 and completely loves the work—feeling thrilled and honored to be some small part of the stories of the student-colleagues with whom he is privileged to share the journey. He also loves being a small part of the Poetic Inquiry movement. He first attended the International Symposium on Poetic Inquiry at Bowling Green, Ohio, USA in 2017.

Sandra Filippelli's (University of British Columbia) interests include poetic inquiry, creative writing, and art education/research. She has published in Art Research International, Poetic Inquiry: Enchantment of Place, Poetic Inquiry as Social Justice and Political Response, Visual Inquiry: Learning & Teaching Art and other periodicals. She is a PhD Candidate in Language and Literacy, University of British Columbia. She fondly remembers riding skeleton down the mountain in the back of a truck in Tibet in 1987.

Sarah MacKenzie-Dawson (Bucknell University) is an Associate Professor of Education at Bucknell University in Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, USA, which sits along the Susquehanna River. She teaches courses relating to spirituality, arts, writing, and gender and finds herself navigating within the liminal and often conflicting subjectivities of mother, scholar, teacher, poet, partner. Each of these facets informs her research. Through her living, teaching and research, she embraces an epistemology that situates experience and understanding as fluid, human, imperfect, deeply complex and spiritually situated. It is her intention to create spaces for mindfulness, dialogue, compassion and creative consideration of the experiences of being educator/ed.

Wanda Campbell (Acadia University) teaches Creative Writing and Women's Literature at Acadia University in Wolfville, Nova Scotia, Canada. She works and writes in Mi'kma'ki, the ancestral and unceded territory of the Mi'kmaw People, in view of the highest tides in the world. In addition to Bronwen Wallace: Essays on Her Works, and Hidden Rooms: Early Canadian Women Poets, she has published a novel Hat Girl, and five collections of poetry, Kalamkari and Cordillera, Daedalus Had a Daughter, Grace, Looking for Lucy, and Sky Fishing.

Will Morin is a multi-disciplined educator, artist and cultural consultant. He is of Ojibway / Scottish / French Canadian ancestry, a citizen of the Michipicoten Anishinaabek First Nation. Will works in Northern Ontario, Canada, offering courses in Indigenous Studies at Laurentian University. He lives with his Anishinaabe-Kwe ndikwemi / life partner, Robin, and their four children.

Index

A

absence, 161, 199
Afro-Indigenous, 51, 52
ancestry, 73, 102, 135, 149, 198
apocalypse, 199, 200, 201 appropriation, 107, 109
archival, 107, 109, 110, 148
arts-based, 51, 110, 176
attention, 57, 58, 76, 80, 121, 122, 123, 124, 166
Australia, 91, 92, 93, 94

B

belonging, 1, 2, 5, 6, 58, 59, 60, 67, 135, 146, 148, 152, 171
Blackfoot, 3
Boy Scouts of Canada, 132
breath, 27, 29, 30, 36, 45, 64, 66, 67, 84, 125, 151, 158, 159, 160,
161, 198

C

Canadian Armed Forces, 131
Caribbean Spanish, 51, 53
Coast Salish, 188
contemplative, 85, 160, 161
counternarrative, 176
country, 28, 40, 53, 55, 89, 91, 92, 116, 137, 143
creational dialectics, 43, 44
creativity, 1, 6, 67, 190, 199
Cree, 2, 18, 19, 79, 80, 82, 84, 85, 86, 205
culture, 6, 23, 33, 43, 51, 60, 75, 80, 81, 87, 90, 91, 94, 100, 101, 102,

107, 109, 110, 116, 122, 125, 160,
176, 200
curriculum, 82, 99

D

dance, 16, 28, 81, 82, 84, 105, 109, 148, 169
decolonizing, 24, 87
Dene, 17, 18, 19
dialects, 89, 91
dialogue, 76, 79, 161
disappearing, 36, 44, 71, 72, 73, 75, 76
dream, 85, 86, 101, 130, 199, 201

E

eco-disruption, 116
ecological knowledge, 32
ecology, 32, 116, 119, 121, 125, 152, 171
ecosystem, 67, 115, 166, 171
ekphrastic, 107, 108
English, 3, 9, 17, 23, 24, 33, 40, 44,
46, 52, 55, 58, 59, 60, 63, 68, 76,
79, 80, 82, 123, 130, 146, 149,
170

F

family, 5, 6, 33, 44, 51, 53, 58, 75, 92, 101, 102, 105, 124, 148, 149,
150, 156, 160, 170, 187, 190, 191, 198
feminine, 23, 24, 137
forefathers, 138
foremothers, 138

G

genesis of language, 46
ghost stories, 132
ground, 16, 23, 29, 43, 86, 92, 93, 102, 105, 131, 199

H

heritage language, 149, 152
hermeneutic, 43
homeland, 58, 68, 111, 135, 137, 144, 148, 188, 190, 191, 192
hope, 15, 18, 44, 76, 86, 99, 101,
107, 109, 110, 125, 161, 170, 199,
200, 201

I

iconographic, 107, 108, 109
identity, 6, 17, 18, 19, 71, 72, 74,
91, 99, 100, 102, 135, 148, 151,
190 imagination, 68, 102, 121, 123, 124, 125, 157, 161, 162
indigeneity, 43, 45, 46, 51, 52, 100, 143, 147, 151
Indigenous, 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 19, 24, 31,
51, 52, 53, 67, 68, 75, 76, 79, 80,
82, 87, 88, 91, 92, 93, 94, 99, 100,
101, 107, 109, 110, 111, 123, 132,
134, 160, 177, 190, 191, 192, 198, 199, 200
insight, 24, 59, 85
interconnected, 23, 24, 123
intergenerational, 6, 73, 99, 100
Ireland, 60, 64, 67, 68

K

knowing, 28, 58, 68, 87, 121, 137, 155, 160, 161, 167, 171, 176

Ktunaxa, 3, 68, 69

L

land, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 17, 18, 19, 24, 28, 29, 31, 32, 49, 67, 68, 79, 80,
82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 90, 92,
93, 94, 101, 107, 110, 111, 113,
116, 123, 124, 131, 135, 136, 137,
138, 143, 148, 149, 150, 155, 158,
160, 161, 187, 188, 192
landscape, 80, 90, 92, 93, 99, 157, 160, 161, 167
Landsker Line, 55, 59
language, x, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 15, 17, 18, 19, 27, 28, 29, 31, 43, 44, 45,
46, 51, 52, 55, 58, 59, 60, 63, 67,
68, 73, 75, 76, 79, 82, 84, 85, 87,
89, 91, 93, 94, 99, 102, 107, 110,
116, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 127,
135, 143, 148, 149, 150, 151, 152,
153, 160, 161, 162, 169, 170, 172,
177, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 198,
200
Latvian, 167, 170
Lebanon, 1, 135, 137
Lenape, 107, 111, 160, 162
Levant, 135
love, 17, 38, 42, 46, 84, 94, 113, 116, 117, 123, 124, 137, 143, 144,
149, 152, 155, 161, 162, 200

M

Māori, 21, 23, 24, 25
masculine, 23, 137
meaning-making, 162, 171
Mediterranean, 136
mentorship, 79
Mi'kmaw, 43, 198, 201
mother, x, 15, 22, 23, 33, 34, 40, 41, 44, 45, 55, 58, 82, 83, 85, 86, 87,

88, 92, 114, 116, 124, 131, 132, 133, 136, 148, 173
mother earth, 82, 86, 87, 88
Mountain Maidu, 28, 31
Myaamia, 107, 111

O

Ojibway, 209
olives, 135, 136

P

performance, 43, 169, 170
phenomenological, 43
place, 5, 6, 28, 37, 42, 45, 55, 58, 68, 75, 81, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 90,
92, 93, 94, 99, 100, 102, 105, 115,
122, 123, 124, 125, 131, 134, 137,
145, 146, 147, 148, 151, 152, 160,
161, 162, 166, 169, 170, 171, 188, 190, 200
poetic inquiry, 1, 4, 5, 6, 31, 32, 43,
44, 46, 51, 52, 53, 67, 68, 99, 100,
107, 108, 110, 135, 160, 169, 170,
171, 176, 177, 190, 198, 201
poetic knowledge, 176
poetic remembrance, 148
poet-researcher, 176, 177, 190
poetry, 1, 4, 5, 31, 44, 52, 58, 60, 67, 68, 75, 76, 79, 92, 94, 99, 100,
101, 107, 108, 109, 111, 121, 122,
123, 125, 135, 137, 152, 153, 161,
169, 170, 171, 176, 177, 190, 191,
201
Puerto Rico, 49, 51, 52

R

reconciliation, 3, 6, 80, 99, 100, 102, 131, 191, 192

relational, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 31, 46, 68, 79, 82, 91, 201
relationship, 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 18, 24, 58, 67, 68, 87, 99, 100, 109, 121, 122,
123, 124, 131, 157, 160, 161, 162,
168, 171, 191, 198
representation, 58, 170, 176, 177
research, 1, 3, 4, 5, 27, 31, 51, 68, 82, 91, 92, 107, 109, 110, 135,
170, 176, 177, 187, 190, 201
residential school, 75, 80, 99, 100, 200 resilience, 136, 146, 176
responsibility, 1, 2, 6, 80, 102, 110, 116 revitalization, 2, 3, 31, 71, 72, 74
river, 23, 28, 29, 69, 89, 92, 107, 115, 136, 146, 155, 156, 160
roots, 6, 18, 19, 53, 135, 136, 137, 148, 167, 170, 191

S

sacred, 46, 67, 82, 86, 90, 93, 94, 109, 113, 115, 160, 161, 162
Saskatchewan, 79, 143, 150
sense, 5, 18, 37, 42, 51, 52, 58, 59, 60, 121, 122, 123, 124, 127, 128,
135, 146, 160, 171, 201
silence, ix, 15, 19, 39, 45, 83, 85, 94, 97, 102, 133, 160, 171, 196
soil, 63, 64, 67, 68, 108, 136, 138, 148, 157
solastalgia, 148, 152
song, 15, 17, 18, 19, 28, 37, 59, 75, 84, 86, 87, 90, 113, 156, 169, 170, 171, 200
soul, 16, 24, 32, 120, 136, 137, 148, 173
Spanish, 51, 52, 53
speculative, 6, 198, 201

struggle, 5, 49, 51, 52, 53, 59, 73, 175
Susquehanna, 159, 160

T

Taino, 51, 52
theory of language, 44
Tibet, 115, 116, 117
tobacco, 52, 83, 84
toponomastic, 148
toponym, 146
topophilia, 149
transform, 52, 60, 79, 88, 98, 99, 151, 152, 168, 169, 171
translation, 15, 17, 23, 24, 25, 73, 76, 94, 107, 122, 145, 146, 169,
170, 171

U

Ukraine, 144, 146, 148, 149
union, 23

W

Wales, 55, 58, 59, 60
Welsh, 55, 58, 59, 60
wisdom, 6, 16, 17, 18, 24, 31, 67, 79, 84, 85, 102, 113, 114, 116
Wolf Cub, 132
writing, 1, 5, 19, 27, 31, 45, 67, 75, 81, 99, 109, 110, 121, 145, 151,
152, 169, 170, 171, 177, 190, 201